

Grace Nanok

Kenana Knitters

Grace Nanok came to Kenana Knitters in 2012, after she was unable to find work within the local community. The work options available to her were cultivating and weeding shamba's (gardens) which was very difficult with a young child in tow.

Through Kenana she has been able to raise her four children and get them to school. The money she earns through her knitting has enabled her to keep a roof over her family's head as well as provide for her family.

Grace is a good knitter who enjoys her work and is always willing to try a new and challenging pattern. She loves to knit items in our organic cotton such as the small Spider Lions and Zebra Bush Babies.

'I really thank Kenana Knitters, without this work my family would have no future.'
