Kenana Knitters

Mary joined Kenana in 2010. Prior joining the knitters she used to take on work as a casual labourer digging shambas (little gardens/farms) for her neighbours and for anyone who needed a labourer. Farm work is brutal, back breaking work that is especially difficult for women who typically go to work with their little children.

Working at Kenana has given Mary a steady income, through which she is able to feed, clothe and educate her four (4) children.

Mary has two of her younger sister's Martha Muthoni and Grace Wanjiku who also work as knitters.

I thank Kenana for being there for women. I am grateful for the regular work that Kenana gives me because I am able to meet the needs of my family.
